GEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF KENTUCKY .- The second volume of the report of the Geological Survey of Kentucky has just been distributed. It forms a most important addition to the knowledge of the geology of our Commouwealth, and reflects credit alike on the Legislature, by whose liberality and foresight it was ordered, and on the gentlemen engaged in the survey, who, by their assiduity and intense application. have accomplished so much in the last two years, during which the survey has been carried on. The utility of the survey has been already proved by its results, which have been published in a preceding volume, and by the appropriation of $25,000 by the last Legislature for its continuance. It is with great pleasure we perceive an awakening interest in this invaluable work.

The volume now before us is a resume of nearly all the labors completed at the time of its publication, both topographical, chemica', geognostic, and general. It is fully equal to the one previously published, both in its typographical execution, arrange ment, and subject matter. It contains no illustra. tions, as it was impossible to prepare them in time for immediate publication, but the third volume, now nearly ready for distribution, contains a number of plates, maps, and sections, illustrating the geology and palæoutology of the survey as far as reported. The first tifty-one pages of the second volume are devoted entirely to subjects appertaining in the highest degree to agricultural interests, and, in a State where so large a portion of its incannot fail to be of the greatest moment. This re- geology of Greenup and Carter counties are fully givport contains scientitic facts which are indispensable to the proper management of Kentucky soils. Many of the most important truths taught in agricultural chemistry, as regards proper manures, their effects, properties, uses, and misuses, are explained in an exceedingly intelligible and satisfactory manner. Dr. Owen, thoroughly imbuded with scientific zeal, has made this portion of his report a perfect mone. graph on the soils of our State, worthy to be compared with the best efforts of the father of agricultural chemistry-Baron Leibig. It certainly evinces the most studions care in the selection and adaptation of its contents to the wants of the Kentucky farmer, and is replete with information which should be carefully treasured by every agriculturist. We regret our inability at present to afford space for several quotations which are general in their application, and would profit alike all whose tastea and opportunities lead them to till the ground. Should an occasion occur, we promise our country friends a number of interesting selections from the pages under consideration, boping thus to be the means of disseminating information which could not else be attained by the mass of our readers.

Since the last report many new coal deposits have been developed; seventeen of them have had their economical value tested, both by proximate and ultimate analysis. For the sake of comparison, several analyses of noted English and Scotch coals are added. The coal fields of Kentucky are situated in the eastern and western portions of the State, being divided by about one hundred and fifty miles of surface. The eastern portion belongs to the great Pennsylvania basin. Dr. Owen makes the attempt to show the parallel between our strata of coal and those of Pennsylvania, but the difficulty of establishing their ident to is very great, and can only be fully accomplished after a minnte study of the palaontological remains of the coal series. Such is the present aim of the geological surveyors, and it has already been commented. We hope it may be car- Robertson; Clerk of City Court, Richard B. There are analyses of seventy iron ores published in the present volume. These were found to contsin from 16.59 to 56.37 per cent of iron, and are fer the most part productive and easily fluxed. These eres, together with some zinc and copper, place our mineral wealth in an entirely new light, capital, and with it other benefits to our Strite. Of and possessed of considerable property.

the twenty-one limestones noticed, one (No. 530) is especially recommended to the citizens of Jefferson county as a durable building material. It is found in the eastern portion of our county, quite convenient to the Louisville and Frankfort railroad. Among other examinations of mineral springs and well waters, is that of a water near Dowlingsville, in Grant county, where, in dry seasons, milk sickness is prevalent. This is one of a series of similar waters which issue from a silicious mud stone, or "rotten sand stone" of the blue limestone formation, and contains in undue proportion chloride of magneslum, which closely resembles salt in its therapeutic effects, and is productive of milk-sickness. When more careful investigations have been made, it may result in solving the problem of this remarkable and heretofore inexplicable disease. Dr. Owen closes his report with the stratigraphical geology of fifteen counties, but space will hardly permit us to extend our notice of this portion any further.

The chemical assistant, Prof. Peter, of Lexington, Ky., has completed and reported on two hundred and six analyses as fo'lows: 48 iron ores of the limonite variety; 22 iron ores of the carbonate variety; 43 soils, subsoils, and marls; 31 limestones; 30 coals; 16 mineral waters and salts; 4 copper and zinc ores and bitumens; 4 sandstones; 2 pig irons; 2 shales and slates-in all 206. That such an amount of varied chemical analyses, requiring so much care and accuracy in their determination, should have been completed in two hundred and twenty-two days is really a subject for wonder, and proves conclusively the truth of the remark we made at the

These analyses contain a vast fund of valuable information, the greater part of which may be brought into immediate use; such, for instance, are those of soils, mineral waters, and iron ores. Of these last, Prof. Peter remarks: "The seventy iron ores which have been analyzed at this laboratory have with few exceptions proved tich and valuable, affording still further illustration of the great wealth of Kentucky, and of the fact that a large amount of capital and labor might find room for employment in our State, in the development of her rich mines and in the supply of the increasing demand for iron in its various forms. The analyses of these ores, and of the limestone, &c., which accompany them, will greatly assist the manufacturer in the apportionment of his fluxes for the most economical production of the metal." The soils have been collected in a manner intended to greatly aid the proper determination of their natural constituents, and what changes have been effected by cropping. For this purpose specimens have been procured of: 1. The elegin soil. 2. The same soil from an old field long in cultivation. 3. The subsoil. And 4. The deeper subsoil or underlying rock stratum. We merely instance this as showing the pains taken to render the work more complete and the great practical value of these

The topographical report, by Mr. S. Lyons, omprised in the last seventy pages. Although this subject presents but little of interest to the general reader, it forms a most essential foundation to all future labors. It is seriously to be regretted that there is no certain data from which to start. In every instance where county maps have been examired, they were found incorrect in toto. We have had occusion before to notice, at some length, one of these glaringly inconsistent county maps, and fear we will be obliged to refer to it again. Having thus to remodel the whole topography of the State adds necessarily to the cost and retards in no small degree the expedition of the work.

Mr. Lyons has been almost constantly in the field, and although laboring under many diagvantages from the difficulty of employing competent assistants, and in the loss of Mr. Malott, who it will be remembered was drowned on the falls last summer, yet he has accomplished his task in a most thorough and adhabitants are engaged in agricultural pursuits, it mirable manner. The details of the stratigrap ic. l and rendered mare intelligible by n sections, admeasurements, &c. Uniontown, Union county, was fixed as the initial point of the base line, from which place it has been carried s'xtv-one miles eight hundred and eighty-five fact, the dir ction being checked from time to time by ob servations for azimuth, and such corrections made as were necessary. This important work will be continued until it reaches the Virginia State line near the corner of Pike county, Kentucky.

> GOLD IN THE NORTH .- A friend of ours has letter from a rela ive in Pepin, Dunn county, Wisconsin, which states that considerable excitement has been created there by the discovery of gold. A man was digging a well in the vicinity of the town, and, in raising the dirt, he saw something sparkle and, thinking it might be gold, took it to Dr. E. Lathrop for examination. This gentleman, having been a resident of California, found it was really gold in a matrix of quartz. Sand has also been washed and vielded handsomely. When the snow melts, there will of course be further investigations, ard it may be that a new El Dorado will be opened to rival the State of the Golden Gate.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river is still falling. Last evening there were 6 feet 2 inches water in the canal by the mark and 4 feet 3 inches ou the falls. The weather yesterday was beautiful.

In anticipation of the closing of the Portland avenue, the Portland Railroad will to-day commence the carrying of freight.

Aground .- The steamer W. A. Eives is reported hard aground in the Kentucky river, sixty unites above Frankfort, and the river is falling fast.

The steamer John Gault, hence for Nashville, i eported hard aground on Cincinnati bar.

The Superior, in starting out yesterday, came in ontact with the Jeffersonville ferryboat, and by the collision the latter had her guards broken.

The Baltic for New Orleans .- This elegant steamer arrived at New Albany on Tuesday night, but was detained there until a late hour discharging freight. We received our package of papers and manifest and morandum after the Journal had gone to press yesterday. The Baltic is one of the most splerdid boats in the trale. In accommodations she has no superior, while her table is supplied with the choicest viands that can be procured.

Capt: Frank Carter will command the Baltic this trip. Though yet a young man, he earned a high reputution as a steamboat commander years ago and was one of the most popular then on the river In Mr. Jouett, we have the poli hed gentleman and scholar, acquirements which must be appreciated by travelers. The Baltic will leave for New Orlean this evering.

The Diana will leave for New Orleans this evening. She has magnificent cabins, and every appointment to render a trip luxurious. Capt. Sturgeon and Mr. Smith and his assistants are model officers. The John Briggs is the packet for Evansville to-

The Emma Dean is the Carrollton packet. Mr. Vinyard, as usual, furnished us with the manifest last night.

The R. J. Ward was at Memphis yesterday. She will arrive on Saturday and leave for New Orleans on Monday. Mr. Wm. Irvin, of the R. M. Patton, has our thanks for a copy of the manifest. The Patton will leate on Saturday.

The Interchange and the J. B. Ford, both heavily laden, are expected from above to-day.

The E. II. Fairchild passed Memphis with a good trip yesterday morning, and will arrive Friday night. The Woodford and Newcom's were at New Orleans on Tuesday.

Loss of the Steamer Eliza Battle .- We give in another column a full account of this terrible disaster on the Bigbee river, in South Alabama. Among the lost was Rev. A. M. Newman, a Cumbe land Presbyterian minister, late of Bridgeville, Ala., who was on board with his family, coming to this city, having resigned his charge in consequence of ill health.

Mrs. Newman and her child were saved. Her maiden name was Miss Jennie Fessler, and she is the sister of our respected fellow citizen, J. K. Fessler. She was married to Mr. Newmin some six ten months ago in this city, and was formerly a teacher in the Alkinson High School. Her numerous friends will rejoice to hear of her fortunate e scape.

ANOTHER COMPANY FOR UTAH .- A company of volunteers for the Utah regiment has been organized at Shelbyville. The following officers have been elected: Joseph C. Dear, Captain; E. G. Dear, 1st Lieutenant; J. H. Waller, 2d Lieutenant; George Owen, 3d Lieutenant; B. D. P. Standeford, 1st Sargeant; Willis Fields, 2d Sargeaut; Lloyd Bolkin, 34 Sargeant; H. H. Parker, 4th Sargeant; C. THE SCIENCE OF ADVERTISING .- There is as much truth as poetry in Gray's often quoted and ever admired lines-

"Full many a gem of purest ray screne The dark mitathomed caves of ocean bear; Full many a flower is born to blush unseen And waste its sweetness on the desert air."

The sentiment is applicable not only to the heartlife of poetry and heroism, but to the every-day transactions of the business world. Men have been born and lived and sunk down to their final rest, "unwept, unhonored, and unsung," in whose minds and hearts there existed the germs of greatness, which, if they had been developed by proper direction, would have commanded the admiration of the world for their heroic deeds and splendid abilities. And in every-day life men have engaged in business, who, although poss-ssing all the energy, honesty, and industry requisite for anccess, have toiled and to:led in vain, year after year, because they had not availed themselves of the proper channels to make themselves and their occupations or their inventions and productions known to the public, while others, far less qualified than they, have rapidly passed them on the high road to fortune from the mere fact that they took advantage of the science of advertising. It is in fact a science and one of but those who are the fortunate possessors of this knowledge acquire wealth and attain success, while th ir less accomplished cotemporaries languish in poverty and obsenrity. Some knowledge of this science has become an actual prerequisite to any degree of succesa in business in this country, and it is well worth the cultivation of every business man, whatever may be his occupation or profession. We heartily commend therefore the following sensible remarks of the Baltimore Patriot on this subject to the attention of all our readers who may be or ex pect to be engaged in business of any kind:

The Phlladelphia North American coutains an editorial non the science of advertising, which, however settish in may appear, is, nevertheless, true and to the point. Nothing "remarks our cotemporary, "more exercises the insemily of the business world than the mode of presenting, in the most striking and effective manner, the claims of an old stand or a new business, an established commodity or an article offering lunevation upon current habits and usages as its recommendation. Whitever is to be effected, whether it be the continuance of a well known line of trade, whether it be the continuance of a well known line of trade, whether it be the continuance of a well known line of trade, whether it be the continuance of a well known line of trade, advertising to business much has become such a necessity that few can do without it. Those few only succeed under peculiar circums ances, which cost more to create, if they can be formed at all, than twice the expense of the most lavish advertising involves."

The first requisite in any business is the right mode of doing it, and the proper materials to overate with. Any undertaking on a less firm basis lihan this comes under the expressive but not very elegant designation of "humbur," This may answer for a day, or a week, or a month, but to advertise is only in the end to expose and extinguish it. neet to be engaged in business of any kindnudertaking on a less firm basis than this comes under the expressive but not very elegant designation of "humbur," This may answer for a day, or a week, or a month, but to a diverties is only in the end to expose and extinguish it.

Knowledge is power; and the more electually, therefore, business men communicate intormation to others concerning their peculiar pursuits in trade, the sooner must they realize the potency of that knowledge. Men, however great, may live and die in obscurity, unless their greatness is heralded, in some form or other, to the world. In propertion as they become known so we their taking and acquirements turned to profitable account, or brought into market, commanding and obtaining intercompensation.

What is true in this respect in regard to I terature, are cleave, deep last of the regard to I terature, are cleave, deep last of the intercompensation.

What is true in this respect in regard to I terature, are cleave, deep last of the intercompensation.

What is true in this respect in regard to I terature, are cleave, deep last of the intercompensation.

What is true in this respect in regard to I terature, are cleave, deep last of the mercantile and business pursuits. Let those engaged in them first postess the requisite qualifications, and in proportion as they sopularize themselves and their business, through a I beral judicious system of advertising, so will have increase in prosperity. There are many who do not seem to realize this take bread cast upon the waters, certain to return after many days; or like the talent put to interest, yielding accumulated wealth; and these are they who complain most of hard fortune, adversities, or slowness in business properity. And furner as reusried by our cotemporary, many men, confident in their own fair title to business and patronage, draw less than their due, by their neglector advertise. At the same time, others, with no higher in this cleaver, and we seem to the point. During the past four or five months, owing to adversities in financial severs outstripped in trace by others more shrewd and farsceing.

We may adopt our Philadelphia neighbor's language and say, as applicable also to Baltimore, "the flight of newspapers which go out of every city duily, your rivisls, if you neglect to avail yourself of the alvantage, may be waylaying your own customers at every post town, and securing the first attention of new purchasers. Among the residents in the city, there are next to none, if there are any, who do not daily read some newspaper. All may not seek the advertising pages; but if there is an article the purchase of which is in a near's thoughts, its name is sure to catch his eye, without his searching for it. Indeed, we know it she habit of many purchasers, ladies as well as genilemen, to make the newspaper their shopping, guide and their business directory. They look to see where, with lewest sleps and least trouble, they may find what they seek. While with such purchasers the advertiser has altogether the best chance, customers who buy thus understancingly are the easiest to satisfy."

Nothing can be truer than this. Types, themselves, which "never lie," proclaim it as incontrovertible, and the practical experience, we don't not, of vory man will corroborate all that is here asserted. Feeling an interest, and all others engaged in wordly pursuits, the best advice we can give them is to advertise.

Exciting Incident.-The following item is from late English journal:

A few evenings ago, as the play of Jes ie Vere was being performed at Wootwich theater, and, when a scene in the third act had been reached in which a "terrific stringsle" for the possession of a child takes place between the food mother and two "hired ruffians," a large Newfood and docs, which had by some means gained admittance with its owner into the pit, leaped over the heads of the musicians in the orchestra and flew to the rescene, selzing one of the assawing, and almost dragging him to the ground. It was with difficulty removed, and dragged off the stage. The dog, which is the property of the chief engineer of her Mujesty's ship fuffato, has been habitually accusioned to the scene; of children, for whom he has on many occasions evinced strong proof of affection.

The politicians on all sides are secretly at work prepring their plans—some for the success, others for the defeat of the Kansus bill. Like office-seekers, they all seem to be satisfied that they will achieve a victory, but the result must, of course, tell a different story.

The Baltimore (Methodist Episcopal) conference has been in session for several days, in this city, but has transacted no business of general importance. Like the East Baltimore conference—the other half of the old Baltimore conference—it stands between two fires. The Northern Methodists charge it with Southern slavery views; while the Southorn Metho 'ists leok upon it as a grand repository of abolition notions. For itself, it claims a 'conservative' position on the subject of those important personages—the "woolly heads." With a view of counteracting the opposing forces, and of placing Baltimore conference Methodism in a true light, it is proposed to publish a newspaper. Some of the brethren, however, think that such a journal would provoke controversy, and increase the heat of battle, and hence they bring all their logic to bear against the enterprise. I think, from the oratorical demical demical control of the control o the enterprise. I think, from the oratorical demonstrations, that they will have an organ. This will, it is supposed, be the commencement of another split from the Northern section, and the creation of a "central" or middle wing of Methodism, against the control of the contro of a "central" or middle wing of Methodism, against ultraisms of their differing brethren North and outh. This idea was, years ago, promulgated, and ow the prospect is that it will be consummated.

[From the Mobile Advertiser of the 3d.] TERRIBLE DISASTER on the BIGBEE!

Burning of the Steamer Eliza Battle.

FORTY LIVESILOST TWELVE HUNDRED BALLS COTTON LOST!

We received intelligence yesterday of a terrible

We received intelligence yesterday of a terrible calamity on the Bigbee river—the destruction by fire of the steamer Eliza Battle—and, what is worse, a frightful losa of life.

It appears that the directer occurred about two o'clock on Monday morning, ahout a half or three quarters of a mile ahove Kemp's Lauding, when the Battle, with some 50 or 60 passengers and 1200 or 1800 bales cotton on board, took fire and was completely consumed.

As far as ascertained, thirty-three lives were lost.

As far as ascertained, thirty-three lives were lost, consisting of the crew and passengers (about one-half each) and all the cotton, except some 15 or 20

The fire had its origin among the cotton bales on the after dock under the cabin, and, although the dames made but little progress at first, a strong north wind (almost a gale) soon spread them to all parts of the boat, and the passengers were compelled to seek safety to their lives by retreating in

The boat was headed for the shore, but, the river

The boat was headed for the shore, but, the river being high and out of its banks and the wheel ropes burned, a landin, could not be eff cted.

She was, however, d iven among the trees, where she ledged until the engines ceased to work, (the intensity of the heat driving the engineers from their posts) when the passengers were enabled to effect an escape by hanging to the limbs and branches of trees and upon bales of cotton thrown overboard.

After the wheels stopped, the boaf awayed around and was driven across the river by force of the wind. This fortunate circumstance probably saved the lives of many of the survivors, as they must otherwise have perished in the thames.

The mate and pilot and some others on cotton bales floated down the river some four miles, shonting for help before boats could be obtoined. These were then carried across the river and hauled on wagons to the scene of disaster, when the survivors

It is proper to state that all efforts to get to the yawl were rendered fruitless, as the flames cut off all means of access to it. An attempt was then made to launch the lifeloot, but before a sufficient force could be mustered the fire again drove the party away.

It is due to Capt. Stone to say that when assistance arrived he gave orders to say that when assistance arrived he gave orders to save the women and children first, and was himself the list to be taken off. The most of those lost were frozen, having been more or less in the water and subjected three or four hours to the cold Northern blast.

The residents of the vicinity, as soon as they learned the disaster, rendered what service was in

No cause for the fire is known, unless it was by sparks from the steamer Warrior, which boat passed to windward about half an hour before the fiames were discovered.

All the books and papers of the boat were lost, and, with the exception of one or two carpet bags, every particle of baggage also.

The Battle belonged to Messrs. Cox, Brainard, & Ca., and was not insured. It is impossible to accertain the loss.

The following is a list of those ascertained to have

Mrs. B. Cromwell and child, frozen, Sumpter

Mrs. H. G. Turner and child, frozen, Washington

W. T. Smith, frozen, Greene county. Mr Caradine, frozen, Chickasaw com Mr Caradine, frozen, Chickasaw county. Mr. Wilha, frozen, Augustus Jones, frozen, Columbus, Miss.

As soon as it was ascertained that the yawl and life boat could not be reached, as a means of saving the lives of those on board, cotton bales, stage planks and every other available article were thrown verboard, that passengers might cling to them for safety.

Muc'i is said by passengers and others in praise of Capt. Stone, and Mr. Frank Stone, the second clerk; Mr. Daniel flartley, the assistant pilot, and others, who, by their cool courage, did much to save the lives of their fellows and to relieve others from intense suffering.

Mr. Benjimin Mitchel¹, a planter from Sumter out the was untiring in his efforts, and, together with Mr John S Jackson, the first mate, went three or four noises below and brought the first assistance that was obtained. They brought up boats to the scene of disaster and took from their retreats many of the passengers, who, benumbed with cold and almost exhausted, must, but for this timely aid, have resided. perished.

One child of Mr. Cromwell was saved by Frank Stone, the second clerk of the boxt, who swam ashere with it. He then placed Miss Turner on a cotton bale and safely landed her on shore. She said to him "You have sayed my life; do save my mother and sister." He then swam off and rescued her sister, who afterwards froze to death in his arms. Her mother froze to death on a tree, which was the tate of almost all who perished.

The assistant pilot, Mr. D. Hartlev, saved Miss Robinson. She threw water on him while he was paddling her ashore on a cotton bale.

An infant of two months old was saved in a re-markable manner. When discovered, by Captain Stone, it had only its night clothes on and was blue with cold. A blanket coat soaked with water was at hand, which the captain laid upon a burning cotton bale and then wrapped the habe in the steaming covering. It is now 'falive and chirping.'

Capt. Stone also saved the mother of the infant by placing her on the cotton, and the two were made as comtortable as circumstances would allow until the boats took them off. Mr. and Mrs. James Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson, Mrs. Pettigrew and others, residing in the neighborhood of where the fatal accident occurred, threw open their houses and placed everything they could command at the disposal of the survi vors. Nothing that they could do to alleviate their sufferings or add to their comfort was spared. Food and clothing they procured for them, and medical attendance was obtained free of cost.

Attendance was obtained free or cost.

Fully thirty-six hours had elapsed before the Magnolia came along, and during six or seven hours of this time, when Jackson and Mitchell brought up the boats, the passengers and crew remained in the cold, without relief.

The Magnolia hrought down the dead bodies of the following persons: John Powell, the barkeeper; L. Y. Martin, of Fayette county, Ky; C. L. Carra-dine, of Chickasaw county, Miss.; and Barnett, the free negro cook.

remains of Mrs. Turner and her daughter The remains of Mrs. Turner and her daughter were left at Peevy's Landing with her relatives. Powell was buried yesterday; Martin will be sent to his home in Kentucky, and Mr. Carradine's remains will be forwarded to his family by railroad this morning.

"The bodles of the following were not recovered: Dr. S. H. Jones, M. A. Galloway, Rev. Mr. Newman, white boy, third cook: Jack, negro; Bill, negro; three white deck hands; chambermaid.

The passengers publish a card, in which they exonerate all the officers of the boat from blame.

More Corruption— The Philadelphia Post Office.— We noticed the Washington rumor, that $25,000 had heen paid to an official high in authority, as compen-sation for selling to the Government the Pennsylvania Bank property, on Second street, Philadelphia, as a post office. The commissioners appointed by Gov. Pollock to investigate the affairs of the hank. Gov. Pollock to investigate the affairs of the hank, state, that among the accounts of Thomas Allibone, they found one of $25,000 charged, "which was given as a compensation to one Individual for services rendered in effecting the sale of the hanking house to the Government for a post office." Here is foundation for another Congressional investigation. By all accounts, the Government was fleeced out of $100,000 in the purchase of that property, and somebody has pocketed the profits. Let the rascality be brought to the surface. THURSDAY EVENING, MARCH 11, 1858.

The Bishop visited England and Ireland early last summer as a delegate to the Wesleyan Conferences in those countries. Subsequently he passed through France, Germany, and Norway, observing the condition of the Methodist mission, and in September was present at the Evangelical Alliance in Berlin. During the winter he extended his travels to Turkey Palestine, Egypt, and Greece. His health while in the East was considerably impaired, but is now im-

THE HEROICS OF WIFE STEALING .- We take the following, upon the subject of wite stealing, from Appleton's New American Encyclopedia, the first volume of which, already published, affords rich promise of the excellence and value of the complete

The abduction of wives is not a prevalent practice in our times. Few Bothwells are to be found now; in most instances where ladies desert their lords, the ladies are the persuading, or at least the councerning party. In this latter case the husband is entitled to damages in proportion to the loss sustained. Where personal violence has been used, the coincil of a crayer character and subjects the personal violence and subjects the personal violence are proportion. crime is of a graver character, and subjects the per-petrator to impri cament for years, at the pleasure of the court. That branch of the science of abduction which consists in the carrying away of unmar ried women generally, and beiresses in particular, is, however, decidedly the most distinguished, being able to boast of an elder padigree and of a longer duration than either of its sister branches. The abduction of the Sabine virgins by the Roman youths carries it back to the most mysterious and misty period of the early history of Rome, and from that time it has continued to flourish down to the present

Among every nation of Europe, with the exception of the Turks, among whom women are a marketable affair, the practice of this species of abduction has prevailed and is prevalent. In the days of knighthood, when chivalry, that nurse of manly sentiment and so forth, prevailed, abducting exploits had at least the incentive of romantic love; but in our demonstrated ways of calculation and concerns the prevailed. least the incentive of romantic love; but in our degenerate days of calculation and economy, they have chiefly been instigated by more material motives, a fat fortune being a more powerful talisman than the sweetest smile. In the rural portions of the United Kirgdom of Great Britain and Ireland, it is still not unfrequent, where a girl is possessed of comparative wealth in her own right, or likely to inherit it from her parents, for nome neighboring aspirant to arm his relatives, descend upon the homestead and carry away the coveted heiress, holding her in custody watil her parents or guardians submit. Some exerce until her parents or guardians submit. Some severe punishment recently inflicted in England, has, how ever, had the effect of diminishing its frequency there. But in Ireland it still retains something of its ancient prevalence. Scarcely a month passes in the southern and western districts of that enthusiastic country without the parish being enlivened by some abducting feat, in which often the gentry play some abducting feat, in which often the gentry play a leading part, and in the riot and dangers of which the Irish peasant absolutely revels and rejoices.

Oftentimes these abductions gave birth to great family and faction fights, one party battling for the recovery, and the other for the retention of the wearer of the golden fleece, but recourse is never had to law, that being deenued mean and cowardly in the extreme. The chastily of the maid-n is in such cases never soiled. She is merely held in close durance until after protracted upoptiation in durance, until, after protracted negotiation. In which diplomacy worthy of Nesselroce or falley-rand is frequently displayed, an arrangement nutually and monetarily satisfactory is reached. The negotiations are usually crowned with an abundant bar quet of whi ky and potatoes. Of I to, hower the entire ones of pre-crying unternished the tional mestige has been left to the lower classes, and the fame of the Irish gentry in this line would pro-bably have faded away, had not a Mr. Carden, a squire from the celebrated fighting county of Tip-perary, stepped forward to relieve his caste from the imputation of degeneracy. The story is fresh, and worthy of narration as an example of the usual routine in such cases.

A Miss Abuthnot, a ludy of considerable wealth, was staying on a vivit with her sister, who was mar-ried to a Mr Gough, the son and heir of Lord Gough, the hero of Sobraon, who was a Tipperary boy. Her fortune was large and her lovers consequently legion. Among the most ardent of the throng was a Mr. John Carden, an Irish squire of very little brains and a good deal of land, which he desired to increase. The lady, however, loved wisely but not too well. Thus foiled, and emulous of the traditions of his country and his bouse this callent leichbard. of his country and his house, this gallant Irishmau armed a large band of raffilms with pistols, skull-crackers, and chloroform, and planting them near a the Sabbath day, made a descent upon her carriage as the quitted service, and attempted to carry her away. The day her of Altion, hence, made vigorous defense, and in fact held bravely her own. Aided by two faithful attendants and one or two vahiant female volunteers, she succeeded in putting her assailants to a complete rout. The perpetrator of the outrage narrowly escaped transportation, and was sentenced to imprisonment and hard labor.

BLOODY AFFRAY IN NORTH CAROLINA .- On the 4th inct. a terrible affray occurred at Windham Settlement, eight miles from Timmondsville, N. C. It appears the place was a resort for all sorts of characters, who engaged in drinking, fighting, &c , and that the residents of the neighborhood appointed a "vigilance committee" to break it np. The Wilmirgton Herald says:

On the 4th inst, about 75 men, armed, went to this place of resort for drinking. The law breakers had been apprised that the vigilance committee, so called, would be there, and they immediately armed themselves for a defence, when one of the desperadoes fired, wounding one of the committee. The tire was returned, killing Caleb Freeman and Abrabam Windham, and seriously wounding E. A. Windham and Thos. Windham, who were living twenty-four hours after the occurrence. Several others were wounded. Of the vigilance committee, one was badly cut, and is supposed to be mortally wounded. Two others are wounded.

BEAN FEVER.-This disease, which some months since made its appearance in Onondaga county, N. Y., and ruged with fearful fatality, has again broken out. The Syracuse Journal says:

We understand that this disease, which in most exest proves fatal, has made its appearance in Constantis, Oswego county, to an alarming extent.

The treety signed on the 18th of December between Her Majesty and the King of Prussia for the marriage of the Princess Royal (here styled Duchess of Saxons) with Prince Frederick William, has just been pointed in Parliament. It provides that the expenses of their joint establishment shall be defrayed out of the appanage of the Prince, which is fixed by the King at 92,000 thalers a year; the Queen gives her daugher a marriage portion of 640,000, the interest of which is to be paid to their Royal Highnesses jointly, and in the event of the decase of either, to their survivor for life, to their children or next of kin. The annual sum of 28,000 is to be paid in quarterly instalments by Her Britannia Majesty for the sole and separate use of the Princess, who cannot alienate, mortgage, or receive it by antioipation. On the other hand, the King of Prussia secures her a jointure of 30,000 thalers in case of widowbood, or of 40,000 if the Prince should die when immediate successor to the throne. A Death Bed Confession—John Brown, of Enfield, Mass, died on the 13th ult., and on his deathbed confessed that he had poisoned two children, had attempted to poison his wie, and had set fire to one barn, which was burnt. The barn was F. W. Shaw's, which was burnt several years ago, and Brown was strongly suspected at the time. The children poisoned are supposed to have been twins of Avery Bartlett, who died a number of years since, at the time Brown lived in the family.

HORRIBLE TRAGEDY AT THE ALTON PENITENTIA-RY .- To the Al'on Courier of Tuesday morning we are indebted for the following particulars of one of the most singular and terrible tragedies ever known to have occurred in the whole country. The Courier's account of the circumstances was closed or Monday night at 12 o'clock. The special disputch to the St. Louis Democrat, giving further details, and the results of the tragedy, was received at St. Louis at a late hour on Tuesday night. The Alton Courier says:

One of the most singular cases which ever came under our observation, or in our reading, occurred yesterday morning at the penitentiary in this city. A convict named Hall, from Chicago, who is now serving out a second term, formed the idea of acquiring his liberty in the following method. He watched his opportunity shortly after breakfast, and when no other guard was in the hall surrounding the cells except Mr. Crabb, whom he knocked down and stunned by a severe blow on the head, then dragged him into one of the lower cells, titch his hands behind his back, fastened the coll door by means of a stick of timber, previously put in the cell by some confederate, then drew a lange knife four his bosom, assisted Crabb to rice, put him egaticat the door, and threatened thin with death a less he was allowed to go at liberty.

This most daring attempt was soon known, and promptly brought Col. Buckmaster and his guards to the spot. The convict threatened Crabb with One of the most singular cases which ever came to the spot. The convict threatened Crabh with instant death if any attempt was made upon the door, holding his knife within a couple of inches of Crabb's breast. For upwards of an hour Col. Buck-master and his guards watched an opportunity to shoot him, but there being but one opening in the door, and that quite small, he kept Crabb constantly between him and the opening, so that he could only be reached through Crabb's body. Thus matters continued until noon, when Crabb made some effort to open the door, but was immediately cut severely in the hard by the convict. During the day the convict stated his terms of subnission to be a revolver, loaded by thin elf, a full suit of citizens' dress, $100 in money, and to be driven out of town in a close carriage, accompanied by Crabb, to such place as he should designate; all of which was of course inadmissable. In the memcountry church, where the lady usually attended on time, however, Col. Buckmaster procured a pardon from the Governor, to be used in his discretion; but up to 12 o'clock last night no information of it had an given to the convict.

All day the guards were on the watch to shoot the scoundrel, but as he had positively declared he would kill Crabb if he was not instantly killed himself, great care had to be taken, for fear he might put his threat in execution. Crabb had no arms whatever, the yard guards not being allowed to car-ry any, and had nothing whatever to defend him elf from any attack of the desperado.

About 11 o'clock last night, one of the gnards got a shot at him, but averted his fire upon a change of position, for fear of shooting Crabb.

The entrance to the cell is very narrow, the door f plate iron, with a small grating at the top for entilation. The door opens inwards and is very of plate iron, with a small grating at the top for ventilation. The door opens inwards and is very stronzly fastened. It is impossible to get at the scoundrel without using great force, which we learned would be applied this morning, unless he should be shot during the night. During the day great fears were entertained that he would kill the guard, and, for fear of that, active operations were not pushed forward. Those best informed think there is now very little danger of his putting his threat into execution, as he must know that death would instantly be his lot.

Hall, the convict, is represented to be a most desperate scoundrel. In view of his character and threats, our citizens were much alarmed for the safety of Crabb, who is well known and highly appreciated, and who has a family residing in the city. Yesterday everything was done which could be done consistently with Crabb's safety. No chance would the convict give for any injury to himself, as he either studiously kept the guard between him and the grating, or laid down against the door, and out of the reach of a shot. He professed to have no ill feeling to Crabb, but had deliberately planned this method of gaining his liberty, and would kill Crabb and then kill himself, unless he was pardoned, and taken out in the manner described.

Before our readers see this account this morning, the desperado will either have been taken or killed. In either event it is to be hoped that Mr. Crabb will not be injured.

[Special Dispatch to the Missouri Democrat.] Full and Latest Particulars.

ALTON, March 9, 81/2 P. M. At nine o'clock this morning, Rutherford, the State Superintendent, and Col Buckmaster, Worden, undertook to get into the cell of the prisoner by stratagem. Breakfast was set at the cell door by stratagem. Breakfast was set at the cell door in vessels of larger size than ordinary, but the conin vessels of larger size than ordinary, but the convict refused to open the door until the hall was cleared, which, after a brief consultation, was done.
The warden, superintendent, and guards were on each side of the cell, but out of sight and motionless. The convict slowly opened the door nearly enough to admit the food, when a crowbar was instantly inserted.

The warden cried out to Crabb, the imprisoned guard, to fight for his life. He accordingly sprang to the opening of the door, and at length diagged himself through, but not before he was stabbed by the convict nine times, seven times in the back and twice on the arms. When the poor victim was dragged out, the convict barred the door again and refused to yield. He was then given a few minutes for ralection, and the reled was, after much dodging and effort, to get out of the reach of the fire, shot by the warden. The ball struck his skull just below the left ear, and, glancing around, lodged under the skull. We fall is struck in the care of the skull with the struck of the skull was the same of the skull. skull. He tell instantly and was dragged out of the cell, and was thought to be dead, but soon recovered and talked as sensible as any maa could under the circumstances.

After the convict was taken ont of the cell, his knife, about eight inches long, with a double edge, was found in the cell, and on his person was found also another large knife, with a blade four inches long. Crabb, the wounded gnard, was immediately taken to the hospital, and his wounds were examined and dressed by Dr. Williams, the prison surgeon, and Allen. The left lung was found to be twice perforated by the knife. The other wounds were not dangerous. After his wounds were dressed be felt quite comfortable as d conversed very freely. He expressed a sense of his dangerous condition, but was calm and hopefut. His wife visited him about 11 o'clock to-day, and he bore himself with much was calm and hopefut. Its wife visited him about 11 o'clock to-day, and he bore himself with much fortitude throughout the interview. Its physicians consider his case very critical, and that the chances are much against his recovery.

The convict was laid on a mattrass in the prison hall. He said he hoped Crabb would live, and in the next breath said he had put five men in the same fix he was in himself.

same fix he was in himself.

Dr. McMasters was present and endeavored faithfully to draw his attention to the fact of his near approach to death. He exhibited no penitence or remorse, but said le "hoped that God, if there was any, would f rgive him." He sent for one of his confederates, and advised him to behave himself when he got out, and not bring himself to what he saw tefere him.

From the boats and passengers which came down the river to-day we learn other particulars, which are only corroborative and not sp full as the above

It is stated that everything was done during the right to surprise the convict into a capture, but that he was vigilant and bloody from one minute's d to the other, and annu ed himself from time to time or pricking an victim with the point of his knife. It is not stated in our dispatch at what time the convict died, but we learn from other sources that he survived his wounds but a short

THE SEA SERPENT.

THE SIA SERPENT.
To the Editor of the London Times:
Sin: Observing in your paper of yesterday's date a letter from a correspondent relative to the marine animal commonly called the 'Sea Serpent,' in the animal commonly called the "Sea Serpent," in the corcluding paragraph of which he mentions that he has no doubt the object seen from her Majesty's ship Dadalus in the month of August, 1848, when on the passage from the Cape of Good Hope to St. Helena, was a piece of the same sea-weed observed by himself, I beg to state that the object seen from her Mujesty's ship on that occasiou was, beyond all question, a living animal, moving rapidly through the water against a cross sea, and within five points of a firch breeze, with such velocity that the water was a fresh breeze, with such velocity that the water was surging under its chest as it passed along, at a rate, probably, of not less than ten miles per hour. Captain McQchie's first impulse was to tack in pursuit, ourselves being on a wird on the lirboard tack, when he reflected that we neither could lay up for it or he reflected that we neither could lay up for it or overhaul it in speed.

There was nothing to be done, therefore, but to observe it as accurately as we could with our glasses as it came up under our lee quarter and passed away to windward, at its nearest position being not more than 200 yards from us; the eye, the mouth, the nostril, the color, and fo m all being most distinctly visible to us. We all felt greatly astonished at what we saw, though there were sailors among us of 30 and 40 years' standing, who had traveced most seas and seen many marvels in their day. The captain was the first to exclain, "This must be that animal called the "sea s rpent," a conclusion which, after sundry guesses, we ull at last settled down to. My impression was that it was rather of a lizard than serpentine character, as its movements were than serpentine character, as its movements were steady and uniform, as if propelled by fine, not by any undulatory power. It was in sight from our first observing it about ten minutes, as we were fast leav-

The Livingston Banquet .- A banquet was given to Dr. Livingstone, on Saturday night, at the Free Muson's Tavern, London. Sir Rod-rick Murchison presided. Three hundred and fifty gentlemen sat down. Dr. Livingstone, in the cource of his speech, said: "If he found a pathway to the highlands of Africa, it was his intension to establish a depot upon the Zanthagae and from that station work to the Africa, it was his intention to establish a depot upon the Zambese, and from that station work to the North and examine the country, more especially that wonderful river sy tem which was reported by the natives to exist, and which, if discovered, would ford a pathway to the country beyond where cotton, indigo, and similar products might be obtained to any amount. Mrs. Livingstone would accompany him in the present expedition, and would be of great service to him." The Duke of Argyll returned thanks for Government, and said that, among the motives which induced Her Majesty's Government thanks for Government undives which induced Her Majesty's Government to assist in litting out this expedition, the first and foremost was a desire to assist in putting an end to the slave trade, and improving the state of the native tribes of Africa. On Saturday the Queen gave a private audience to Dr. Livingstone to wish him a private audience to Dr. Livingstone to wish him offer at unpre-redented low prices, and at one price ouly. A Railway Train Stopped by Brigands —We read in the Courier d' Italie: "Between Rome and Frascatti is a railway uine miles long. A considerable nnmber of persons went the other day to a fete at Frascati, the ladies being dressed in their richest garment, and wearing their costliest jewelry. This was all know to the brigands. Accordingly, they seized the officers who occupied the intermediate station in the midst of the deserted country, and station in the midst of the deserted country, and proceeded to boist the red flug, as a signal to stop. The engineer, feating something was on the line, brought the engine to a dead stand, when the robbers instantly laid hold of the travelers and coolly plundered them, doing them, however, no other injury. Up to this time we had fancied that railways would put an end to this sort of adventure; but the foregoing stroke performed at the very gates of Boure shows that we were too sanguine. Instead of Rome shows that we were too sanguine. Instead of robbing some ten or a dozen passengers in a diligence, the brigands now take a hund ed in one of robbing some ten or a dozen passengers in a diligence, the brigands now take a hund ed in one haul. Of course, the more productive this peculiar branch of industry becomes in the Roman States the greater will be the numbers of the e who follow it."

A GREAT MEDICINE FOR FEMALES .- Hundred stimulants have been invented and sold purport to be specific in the various diseases and deran ments to which the delicate form of weman ren her subject. The result of all these stimulants is been to impart momentary activity to the nerve system, and false vigor to the mu-cles; but this lief has been succeeded by a degree in and pr tration greater than before; and the repeated tempts of invalids to build themselves up by the false remedies have finally ended in destroying wi little vital organization was left. But in usi "Beechave's Holland Bitters" you will find no et disastrous results. It is a purely vegetable co pound, prepared on strictly scientific principles, af the manner of the celebrated Holland Profese Bornave. Under its influence every nerve a muscle receives rew strength and vigor, appet and sleep return, and, finally, perfect health. S advertisement in another column. m6 j&beod3&wj1

In the assault upon Canton there were numerous hand to hand encounters. The British lost 100, the French 30, in killed and wounded. A large amount of treasure was captured, but plunder was forbidden.

XXXVTH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION. Thursday's Proceedings.

Washington, March 11. Senate.—Mr. Cameron, of Penn., presented a me-morial from the crizens of Penns, Ivania, Iavorieg the establishment of a line of mail steamers between Phil delphia and Brazil. He also submitted a resolution calling on the President for instructions sent to the marshal of Utah.

Mr. Hunter, of Va., withdrew his motion for an

Mr. Polk spake in favor of the admission of Kansas into the Union. She had all the requisites for admission, with a constitution which no one excepting the Senator from Connecticut denies to be repulsive in the contract of lican in form. That instrument is the deliberate ochoi e of the people in parsuarce of the law, and possesses all the forms necessary to insure the free expression of the will of the people. Congress could require nothing more, so long as the constitution is reputd can. In this respect he considered it as unexceptionable as that of any State in the Huion. Union. House .- The volunteer hill was taken up.

Mr Stanton favored the bill, but thought the dis-turbances in Utah could be qualted in one campaign, and therefore the increase should be temporary. He was not in favor of regulars for this duty, and was optosed to an increase of Executive parronage at this time, because he had no confidence it would be properly applied.

The thought he knew the motive of the Administration in asking the House for an augmentation of tration in asking the House for an augmentation of the Army. It had staked its existence on the adma sion of Kansas under Lecompton. To do so it wanted additional patrenage. By issuing one hundred and eighty-five army commissions, Kansas can be admitted. Calhoun will then certify pro-slavery members elected to the Legislature. If disturbance results, the executive will have a pretext for using troops in Kansas. He asserted as a constitutional principle that the President has not the power to use the standing army except in case of open public use the standing army except in case of open public war with a foreign country or rebellion in State or Territory, or to repel inva-ion. Therefore he condemned their employment in the Boston fugitive slave case, in Kansas, or, us last summer, in Washington during the municipal election.

XXXVTH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION. Wednesday's Proceedings Concluded.

WASHINGTON, March 10.

Senate.-The resolution was amended limiting to a book of one volume of 800 pages—thus amended it passed. The resolution provides ten thousand copies of patent office reports on mechanics.

Mr. Hamlin, having finished a defense of the Northeru laborers, proveeded to examine Mr. Hammond's assertion, that the wealth of the nation conmond's assertion, that the wealth of the nation consists in her exports, denying the truth of the proposition and showing that the hundred millions of cotton exported by the South no more proved that that sum represented her surplus profit after paying all demands than does the eight hundred millions, the value of Northern manufactures, indicate that amount of Northern surplus of wealth. The exports have to pay for the imports consumed, therefore they cannot be profit or surplus wealth. The South consumes all the profit of its exports, and yet Mr. Hammond, assuming two hundred and twelve millions of dollars as the total exports of the South claims that amount as surplus wealth. He (Mr. Hamlin) might with as much propriety contend that that might with as much propriety contend that that amount of imports showed a surp'us of wealth, in-asmuch as the exports assume the ability to balance the imports.

Mr. Hamlin proceeded to show the fallacy of both positious, citing statistical tables, comparing the exports and imports of the North and South. He experts and imports of the North and South. He next proceeded to examine the true sources of national wealth as indicated by schools, population, agriculture, manufactures, shipping, railroads, capacity for wer, &c., giving figures to show the relative strength of the two sections in these resources. On manufactures the aggregate net profit of the South was $79,000,000 and of the North $326,000,-000. As to the capacity to build ships and railroads and for war he denied that these were the true indices of national greatness, though they were to some extent; taking them as such, he showed, in figures, a preponderance of the North over the South the proportion of ten to ve in ship tennes and in the proportion of teu to ore in ship tonnage and upwards of five to one in railroads; while as to the capacity for war, he showed that in the Revolutioncapacity for war, he showed that in the revolution-ary war the North contributed 218,000 men to 71,-000 men by the Soula. He admitted that the South-erners were a creat people with respect to defensive war, but he did not think their pecular institution culd be harmless in such an event.

How was it with Sauth Carolica in the war of this country. She was repeatedly asked for men and al-ways fell short of her quota. In 1779 she was asked for none and she furnished them. He did not state these tacts to disparage that State. God forbid,— But when Southern Senators threw disparagement upon the North, he felt justified in quoting focts and figures as evidence of what she has done. He then passed to a discussion of the Kanas bill. She was repeatedly asked for men and al-was palpably the design and intention of that repeal was palpably the design and intention of that repeal and we have the result in the measure before us. Considering the question relative to the constitution, he contended that, until approved by the people, it was not worth the blank paper it was ritten upon. The Lecompton convention had not been so approved, but in fact the people of Kausas on the 4th of January rejected it by an overwhelming majority, and would have spat upon it. We are now attempting to force it upon the people under the forms of law, and no act save that of crucifixiou could equal the turplinde of this.

MR. REED, LORD ELGIN, AND GOVERNOR YEH. Private letters from the American fleet in the Chinese waters give a somewhat different account of Mr. Reed's correspondence with Gov. Yeh from that published by the London journals. Mr. Reed, it seems, sent a communication to the Governor of Canton, in which he informed him of the objects of his mission, and requested an interview within the city. The reply of Yeh was that he would receive the American Minister, Reed, without the walls, as there was no instance on record of the reception of a foreign envoy within the city.

Mr. Reed had, moreover, in conformity with his instructions, tendered through the Governor of Canton the mediation of the United States government for the pending difficulties with the British. This was tendered before the ultimatum of Lord Elgin was tendered before the ultimatum of Lord Elgin was sent to the Governor. The offer was not noticed, and no interview had occurred between Mr. Reed ami the Imperial government.

It is stated that, in a dispatch from Yeh which the British had intercepted, he spoke very contemptuously of the American offer of mediation.

Mr. Reed has also had a correspondence with Lord Elgin upon the subject of the instructions of our government and the position which Mr. Reed was to take in regard to the war. Lord Elgin expresses much disappointment and chapting at the determine. much disappointment and chagrin at the determina-tion of the United States to keep aloof from the con-flict, or from any course which would tend to coerce the Chiuese government into a change of their policy toward the commercial and Christian world.

SAILING OF THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH STEAMER The United States steam frigate Niagara sailed this morning for England, to resume the attempt to lay the electric telegraph calile across the Atlantic. She steamed down the river from the Navy Yard against the flood tide, and passed the Castle on Governor's Island at 12 6'clock.

Island at 12 o'clock.

The Niagara is the largest ship in the world (except the Leviathan, just launched at London) but her movements as she passed among the vessels in the river and through the ice, were as easy and quick and graceful as those of our river steamers.

She is to take one-half the cable on board, and an English ship (regulably the Argament) will take English ship (probably the Agamemnon) will take the other half. The two ships will then proceed to mid-ocean, where they will unite two ends of the cable, and then, one sreaming for England and the other for America, will occupy but half the time in laying the whole which would be required in the attempt to computers at the English cast and proceed tempt to commence at the English coast and proceed continuously to this. The chances of fair weather during the process will thus be doubled. The time occupied, after the vessels part from the starting point, will, if no accident occurs, be about seven to eight days in reaching the two shores.

The Niagara will probably return to this country

PACIFIC HOTEL MYSTERY .- The examination be fore Esquire Herckenrath, of Charles L. Taylor, alias Sanders, charged with murder and arson, which alias Sanders, charged with murder and arson, which was on Friday postponed to yesterday, has been continued until Thursday afternoon, to await the arrival of Mr. French, of Othkosh, Wisconsin, one of the hotel men, said to have been induced by Taylor to leave the City Hotel and go to the Pacific. What light he, as a witness, can throw upon the matter, we are not apprised; but, judging from the evidence already published, it is not likely he can furnish any additional information. Taylor has already proved, or rather the prosecution has proved for him, a complete alibi, as far as setting fire to the hotel is concerned. If Mr. French throws anything tending to confirm the idea of a marder, it is not probable that it will amount to anything more than a grouping of it will amount to anything more than a grouping of suspicious circumstances which transpired before ten o'clock of the night preceding the disaster, and all that we have already had. The truth is, that all that we have already had. The truth is, that this investigation, while it increases the mystery of the terrible calamity, is not likely to develop anything which may substantiate the charges against any of the parties who have heretofore been accused. It may be well enough to continue the examination for the purpose of eliciting all the facts, but as a criminal proceeding, the case has lost all interest, and in that regard the public has ceased to care for it.—St. Louis Republican.
